Ideal for short-term drinking, the 2017 Friuli Colli Orientali Pinot Grigio offers a good amount of pulp and succulence with aromas of tropical fruit, honey, pear and poached apple. Some 25,000 bottles were made. Winemaking is executed in a simple and straightforward manner, with fermentation in stainless steel and a brief, six months on the fine lees. This vintage underwent partial malolactic fermentation, which accounts for some of the fruity heaviness you get on the close.
